

Please leave XM radio alone. I just got it and love it. Now i don't have to listen to adds for 3/4 of the hour and only 15 min. of music. And I don't have to worry about the local station going out. I can go from one end of the state to the other and never have to look for a radio station again unless I decide that I want to listen to a different type of music. What could be better?Being that I live in Savannah, I don't benefit from XM INSTANT TRAFFIC & WEATHER, but as far as I can tell it's only offered in major areas of the country. And it's a big country. There's still alot of people that it doesn't pertain to. Which means there are plenty of listeners that would have to tune into their local stations to get there local news. So whats all the fuss about? And besides I'm the one paying $10 a month to have XM radio. If they want to give me local news and weather from savannah then let them

Joseph Rhoden